BURGLARS MADE A HAUL.

New York, Oct. 30.—Burglars succeeded in entering the apartments at a hotel in this city occupied by J. B. Lewman and brother, of Louisville and Judge Van Epps, who was for many years local judge in supreme court in Atlanta, Ga., last night. A valuable split-second watch belonging to the Lewmans and money said to amount to several thousand dollars were secured. It is supposed the burglars chloroformed the Lewmans.

THE LEG SAVED.

KAY WOODS ALMOST LOST ONE IN COG WHEELS.

Kay Woods, a youth employed at the Paducah Veneer and Lumber Co. plant in Mechanicsburg, came near losing a leg yesterday afternoon, and but for his quick action would have been seriously injured.

He was working about some machinery when he fell against a set of cog wheels. His left leg was drawn into a cog and he quickly pulled away before the flesh was well caught. The member was badly bruised, and but for his quick action the leg would have been drawn in and crushed off. Dr. J. S. Troutman dressed the injury.

BATTLE WITH SHOTGUNS.

Lawrenceburg, Oct. 30.—Word has just reached here from Green Hill, Ala., that R. H. Nelson and W. G. Below, of the Fifth district of this county, who had started for the Tennessee river on a fishing trip, became involved in an altercation while at Green Hill, both using shotguns. Nelson was killed outright and Below is dying. The cause of the trouble could not be learned.

TO INSPECT MINES

The Commission Goes to Scranton and Began Today.

It Will Necessarily Have to Travel Slowly—Testimony Will Be Taken.

PRES. MITCHELL NOT THERE

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 30.—The anthracite coalstrike commission, who will make an inspection of the mines and the homes of the mine workers, arrived here last night. Commissioner T. H. Watkins, whose home is in this city, came here early in the day, and arranged some of the details for the first day's tour of the upper region. The commission's headquarters is at the hotel Jermyn, where the party occupies fourteen rooms.

Today is being spent in the region north of this city. At 9:15 a. m. the party left for Forest City, the upper edge of the hard coal fields, 22 miles from here. President Mitchell will not come to this city unless sent for. The train will travel slowly so that the commissioners can get a good idea of the country. At Forest City the party was lowered into one of the Erie company's mines, and the entire morning was spent underground.

As a precaution against accident, a superintendent, fire boss or a practical miner will accompany each member of the party through the workings. If the program for the day is not disrupted by subsequent developments, lunch will be had at Carbondale, four miles south of Forest City. A coal breaker will be visited at Carbondale, and then the return journey to Scranton will be made. The commissioners will stop at Olyphant, six miles north of Scranton for the purpose of visiting other collieries and to look at the homes and surroundings of the mine workers. Scranton will be reached at about 6 o'clock in the evening.

On Friday the commission will spend the day visiting the collieries in and about the city of Scranton and viewing the mining suburbs. Saturday the commission will go to Wilkes-Barre to further prosecute their investigations.

A PARTIAL VICTORY.

CASE OF MRS. MATTIE WILKERSON HEARD AT HOPKINSVILLE.

Attorney Morton K. Yonts has returned from Hopkinsville, where he went to argue the case of Mrs. Mattie B. Wilkerson against James Radford and wife, suit for the possession of a $22,000 farm which had been deeded to the defendants by the plaintiff while she was under the age of 21, so the petition reads.

The defendants' attorneys set up a claim that at the time the plaintiff deeded the farm over to the defendants she swore she thought she was 21 years of age, and on this point they hoped to win. The court decided that this was not a strong enough point and the case is practically won for the plaintiff, her attorneys think, as there will now be no trouble met with in establishing that she was a minor at the time the deed was made.

MORGAN DEFEATED.

HIS LONDON TUBE RAILWAY BILL WITHDRAWN FROM HOUSES OF COMMONS.

London, Oct. 30.—The efforts of the promoters of the Morgan "tube" railway scheme to procure the re-establishment of the parliamentary status of their original franchise bill as a whole led to an hour's debate in the house of commons, the only result of which was the withdrawal of the endeavor.

The Morgans intend to ask later for the recommitment of the bill granting rights for their proposed "tube" and other lines, without regard to the London United tramway company, which was to have been operated in connection with the "Morgan tubes," but which was privately bought up by the Yearkes interests.

In Chiba-Ken the number of houses entirely demolished was 9,775, while 37,096 houses were damaged. The number of persons killed was 52, while 409 persons were injured.

In Miyagi-Ken several fishing boats were wrecked off the coast of Takahagomura and twelve fishermen were drowned.

MR BORTHWICK'S MISSION.

CAME OVER HERE TO STUDY AMERICAN JOURNALISM.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Hon. Oliver A. Borthwick, who was reported to be a special messenger from King Edward, arrived in Washington last night and registered at the Willard hotel, where Sir Michael Herbert, the British ambassador, has apartments pending the repairs to the embassy.

Mr. Borthwick bore a package of official papers from the British government to Ambassador Herbert, which he delivered on his arrival tonight. When seen tonight, however, he laughingly declared that he was not a special messenger from the king. He had no official mission, but had come to America for a five weeks' inspection tour of American newspapers, his father being the owner of the London Post.

LATE ARRESTS.

The following arrests were made this afternoon: Will Harris, colored, by Officers Potter and Evitts, for breach of ordinance in talking to a woman of ill repute. Joe McNary and Mace Miller, colored, by Officers Wood and Lynn, for drunkenness.

HER THROAT WAS CUT

Fiendish Murder of a Young Lady Near Little Rock.

Desperate Fight to Protect Her Honor and Life, with Her Brutal Assailant.

NO ONE YET ARRESTED.

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 30.—Miss Florence Shillcutt, the 19 year old daughter of Charles Shillcutt, a farmer living near Big Rock, was found in the woods near her home yesterday afternoon with her throat cut almost from ear to ear. Physicians who examined the body say that she had been dead about five hours when the body was found. Miss Shillcutt left her home shortly after 8 o'clock to spend the forenoon with her uncle's family, who live in the neighborhood. The spot where her body was found is about half way between the two homes. Evidence is plain that the young woman made a desperate effort to save her life and the struggle with her assailant continued for 50 yards. She was cut in five different places on the body in addition to the gash across her throat. No other marks of violence was found. Her body was then dragged several yards into the underbrush in an old field.

The officers have no positive evidence to locate the murderer but are working on several important clues. A soldier with a black dog was seen in the neighborhood at about the time of the murder was committed and a dog was heard barking about the same time. Several bloodhounds were put on the trail this evening and every effort is being made to catch the guilty man. Miss Shillcutt was an estimable young lady and was the niece of two well known business men of this city of that name. Criminal assault was unquestionably the intent of the assailant.

A young farmer named Knight was arrested by the police this evening on suspicion. He lived near the Shillcutt home and was a frequent caller upon the murdered girl. It is said that her parents objected to his attentions and he ceased visiting the house several days ago. Knight was at home when arrested. He denies any knowledge of the crime and further than this declined to make a statement. Intense excitement prevails in North Little Rock today and if the right man is caught a lynching will doubtless be the result.

The Elks meet tonight in regular session, and Mr. W. A. Bishop of the Dick Fowler will be initiated into the order. Mr. James Robertson, the second clerk, was initiated two or three weeks ago.

DEFENDANTS WIN

Two Damage Suits Decided Against the Plaintiffs.

Jury in the Ferryman Lumber Case Is Unable to Reach an Agreement.

NEWS IN CIRCUIT COURT.

The jury in the case of Fairfax Craig against the street car company for $5,000 damages brought in a verdict for the defendant yesterday afternoon. The plaintiff claimed that Motorman Houston Wilkerson beat him up on a car, but the evidence showed that Craig had advanced towards the other with his hand in his pocket when assaulted.

The suit of Mrs. Jennie Beard against the Manhattan Insurance company or money on policies on the life of her husband, who committed suicide in Memphis several years ago, was continued until January.

This morning the case of J. T. Hale against the Illinois Central railroad was begun in circuit court. There are many witnesses in the case and it probably will not be finished before tomorrow.

Hale was employed in the blacksmith shops of the company last summer and was injured while in the employ of the company. There were several blacksmiths aiding Hale in handling an axle and in attempting to enter a door the heavy piece of steel caught against the sill and was knocked off the carriage. Hale held of one end and his hands were caught when it fell and both hands crushed badly. He claims permanent damages to the amount of $3,000 which he brings the suit to secure.

Unexpected evidence was introduced in the Hale case soon after it was begun, and the court instructed the jury to find for the defendant, which was done. Hale asked for an appeal, which was granted. It seems that Hale was not handling the axle as he should and had his hands locked under the steel, so that when all the weight of the many hundred pounds was thrown on them his fingers locked and he could not turn loose.

The case of Will Rand against J. W. Puckett was dismissed.

In the case of J. S. Sloan and others against the E. Rehkopf Saddlery Co. a continuance was ordered.

The case of J. J. Peeler against B. H. Pryor and others was continued at the costs of the plaintiff.

At press time there has been no decision in the case of James Ferriman against the E. Sodenheimer Lumber Co. The jury has had the case since yesterday at noon and it is probable will be unable to agree.

In the case of Fairfax Craig against the Paducah Railway and Light Co., the attorneys for the plaintiff have filed reasons and motion for a new trial, but the court has not yet acted on the matter.

The case of J. H. Evans against the Paducah Railway and Light company was dismissed by the attorneys for the plaintiff without prejudice.

TAKEN BACK.

JACK RICKS WENT TO ALABAMA TO ANSWER A CHARGE OF GRAND LARCENY.

Chief of Police W. T. Jeffries of Tusculum, Ala., arrived last night after Jack Ricks, the negro who gave himself up several days ago and said he was wanted there for grand larceny. The officer says that several months ago a sum of money in a roll, laid down by R. T. Aday, who keeps a general merchandise store at Tusculum, was snatched by a negro said to be Ricks. It is not known how much was in the roll, but there was a $20 bill on the outside, and the negro went to Boston from there. Rick says he is not guilty but is tired dodging.

Dr. J. R. M. Dillon, the resident surgeon at the local railroad hospital, returned this morning from Chicago and Asheville, N. C., much improved in health. Dr. Dillon broke down in health several months ago and went to the Winyak sanitarium in Asheville, N. C., where he remained the greater part of the summer. He left there about ten days ago and has since been making a tour of the east. His many friends here will be pleased to learn of his recovery and return.

Detective Murray, the assistant chief detective of the Illinois Central road, of Chicago, was in the city today, and left on the private car with Mr. W. J. Higgins, superintendent of transportation, for Louisville. Supt. W. J. Higgins was also accompanied by Mr. Daniel Higgins, the chief car tracer of the Illinois Central of Chicago, who also is on a regular trip south.

Notices have been received here of the appointment of Dispatcher J. P. Haden to the office of chief dispatcher of Cairo terminal, with headquarters at that place. Mr. Haden succeeds Mr. R. C. Mason, resigned, and is one of the most popular dispatchers on that division of the Illinois Central road.

Mr. W. J. Laffey, traveling car agent of the Illinois Central, was in the city yesterday on business. Mr. Laffey was formerly special agent for the company, with headquarters at Louisville, and is making the same success in his new duties that he did when acting as a detective for the road.

Mr. P. D. Fitzpatrick, formerly chief engineer of the Louisville division of the Illinois Central, but now of the Katterjohn Construction Co., arrived in the city this morning from the south on business.

Superintendent A. Philbrick and Trainmaster T. A. Banks, of the Louisville division of the Illinois Central, were in the city last night on business.

CARRIE NATION'S CHAMPION.

DRUMMER KNOCKS DOWN MAN WHO PERSISTED IN INTERRUPTING THE SMASHER.

Knoxville, Oct. 30.—Mrs. Carrie Nation, the Kansas saloon smasher, paid Knoxville a brief visit yesterday. She was en route to Asheville, N. C., and while her train remained at the depot for fifteen minutes she put in the time addressing an audience of 300 people, who quickly gathered around her. While she was speaking a well dressed stranger whose name could not be learned, interrupted her several times, greatly annoying her. Finally Robert Duncan, a drummer for a local house, tired of the fellow's actions and knocked him down, using him badly before he thought he had given him enough. Mrs. Nation presented Duncan with one of her souvenir hatchets.

Mr. James Sleeth, the druggist, who has been assigned the duty of presenting to the local druggists the resolution relating to Sunday closing, has secured nineteen signatures to date and has not been to see the druggists in the southern portion of the city.

There are two druggists who have refused to sign or rather who have said that they would not sign, but these have not yet been visited. Since the police department has determined to close everything on Sunday, the druggists have taken another view of the situation and will probably be willing to sign up.

WILL END RIVALRY

A Gigantic Soft Coal Combine Has About Been Formed.

Big Pittsburg Concern to Have Capitalization of $110,000,000—Strongest Company in the World.

NOTHING DEFINITE DONE YET

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 30—Negotiations are under way for a merging of the Pittsburg coal company and the Monongahela river consolidated coal and coke company, with their combined authorized capitalization of $110,000,000, and assets of $130,088,581. Consolidation of these interests will launch by far the strongest bituminous concern in the world. The combined coal output of the two concerns is close to 30,000,000 tons a year. The plan is to make the Pittsburg company lessee and the purpose to economize operations.

Successful termination of the deal will end the trade rivalry which has existed between the two companies either under or on the surface. Early this year the two interests so prolonged the unsatisfactory negotiations for renewal of contract of other years, where by the Pittsburg company took the output or rail shipment of the river company, that they split over it. Through the failure to come to terms former President Frank M. Osborne of the Pittsburg coal company stepped in and contracted for the rail output of the river company. This coal is now being furnished from seven mines at the rate of 125,000 tons a month.

The negotiations which are now on to bring the two big interests together are understood to be between two men—President Francis L. Robbins of the Pittsburg coal company and Colonel J. B. Finley, president of the river company. A day may develop something more tangible. The matter has not yet gone before the directorate of either company, so far as can be learned. The tentative plan is to merge the two companies and at the same time eliminate one of the seemingly fundamental principles of such moves, which is the issuance of a new and increased lot of watered stock to more than cover the combined issues of the constituents. While the Pittsburg company will probably become the investor interest, there is no present purpose to issue new stock of the Pittsburg company to take over that of the river company. Anything like a stock watering deal is to be eliminated.

The plan will further provide for some of the directors of the river company being added to the already large and strong directorate of the Pittsburg company. When the two big companies were forming at the same time there was an effort to make them one, but this was in part blocked by the purpose of the river company to float a bond issue of $10,000,000. Since then several efforts have been made, but always on different lines from those now intended, and which are more promising of success. If Mr. Robbins and Colonel Finley come to terms it will be no difficult matter to secure the approval of the directors and stockholders of the two companies.

Rumors of a pending deal had reached the city, and the stock of the river company sold higher, while that of the Pittsburg company was what the brokers call heavy yet firm. Further developments are expected soon.

NEWS FROM THIS SECTION

COKE OVENS TO BE BUILT.

Grand Rivers, Oct. 30—The Hillman Iron company, now operating the Grand Rivers furnaces, have drilled to the Bell coal from the bottom of the shaft, and discover that they are now within a short distance of the famous coal, which will be used for cooking, a hundred more ovens to be built at Sturgis as soon as the coal is proved. This will also lead to further development of this great coal field, especially the mining of the Bell vein, which ranks with the best of Pittsburg, and some 1,200 miles nearer the southern market and seaport. The Paducah Coal company, already in operation at Sturgis, has just received twelve large new barges, the first of the big fleet they will use in shipping their product to Paducah and Memphis. The Tradewater Coal company, which also ships by rail over the Illinois Central, is doing a big business. Of the latter company, J. L. Frankel, formerly of Louisville, is president, and other leading citizens there are stockholders.

TROUBLE AT STURGIS.

Sturgis, Ky., Oct. 30—The little city of Sturgis is all torn up, so to speak, over a war between the union organizations and non-union merchants and farmers of the neighborhood. The trouble arose over the attempt of the union bodies to organize the clerks of the various stores. Some eight or ten joined, but the other clerks refused to go in, resulting in a boycott of those stores employing non-union labor.

A meeting was held by the non-union merchants and farmers who invited Mr. "Kit" Barnaby, president of the Miners' union of this district, to explain why such a boycott should have been instituted. Mr. Barnaby gave his side of the matter and several merchants and farmers made brief and spirited addresses, but all resulting in neither settlement nor compromise. When or how the controversy is going to end no one can tell. The Tradewater Coal company employing several hundred miners, is one of the houses on the "unfair" list, but it is reported today that the store will be unionized or the clerks in their employ who refuse to join the union will lose their positions.

THE SUN'S PUZZLE PICTURE.

"I AM COMING, JANE." WHO IS SPEAKING?

Will Benefit the Whole City

Mayor Grainger, of Louisville, has just issued a proclamation giving several good reasons why the vote on sewer bonds should carry. They apply in a measure to the vote on street improvement bonds in Paducah and are as follows:

To pay for the bonds will necessitate a levy of nine cents on each $100. Heretofore there has been levied for street reconstruction from four to eight cents and for sewer construction from three and a quarter to nine cents. While this has done some good in a measure, it has done no good in certain parts of the city where most needed. Should this bond issue be approved by the people, it will not be necessary to make a levy covering these two accounts.

There has been considerable discussion about this being an expense upon the taxpayers; formerly streets were built and sewers placed in such parts of the city, as mentioned above, as were of benefit only locally. The property which would be benefited by the proposed sewers, in my opinion, would increase in value to such an extent that the property which is now assessed at $2 or $3 per foot would soon reach a value that could be assessed at from $9 to $10 per foot, showing that the property which would be directly benefited by the proposed sewers will be the property that will really pay the larger part of the cost. Property owners owning small houses and homes assessed at from $1,000 to $2,000, upon a levy of nine cents per $100, will, you see, pay only from ninety cents to $1.80 per year for this contemplated improvement.

A few years ago the city of New Orleans, having postponed and put off the building of a proper sewerage system, finally reached the conclusion that it must have streets and sewers, and plenty of them, and to show that the people there were in good earnest they contracted for $17,000,000 worth of sewers and $14,000,000 worth of streets, which they have been building and are still in course of construction.

This being a strictly non-partisan measure, I trust every citizen who is interested in the future welfare of our city will use his endeavor toward the passage of this important measure.

COLONEL LAWSON'S LATEST

He is Reported to Have Killed a Large Whale.

A Bomb Lance Fired Into it and it Disappeared for Several Days.

The latest adventure of Colonel Thomas W. Lawson of Boston, the copper king, and formerly mayor of out little neighbor, Grand Rivers, where he built the big iron furnaces, was recently where he went whale hunting.

A mammoth finner whale, nearly 70 feet long, with a bomb lance in his side, lies dead on the shore at Ellisville. And the fisherman who found it expects that it will be claimed by the Boston millionaire. A few days ago Mr. Lawson's palatial ocean-going yacht Dreamer was cruising off Boston light, when a large whale was sighted. The yacht is equipped with almost every conceivable device, and the sailormen lost no time in rigging their apparatus for the chase and going in pursuit of the big finback. According to the story, they managed to get near enough to fire a bomb lance, and the whale disappeared beneath the water. Whales killed in this manner are often lost track of for several days, and the victim of the Lawson hunt is believed to have been found.

Despite the storm, hundreds visited the scene today and viewed the monster, which lies high and dry at low tide and resembles nothing so much as the hull of some disabled vessel. Whales of this size and this species are not frequently found in the waters of Cape Cod, and the unfortunate is believed to have strayed from Hatteras way to meet death in the north Atlantic.

Several offers for the monster have been made, one man proposing to embalm the big fellow and exhibit it at the St. Louis fair.

COAL MEN ARE IN SESSION.

An Interesting Meeting Is on in Louisville.

Mr. T. J. Flournoy of Paducah Is One of the Delegates.

Mr. T. J. Flournoy, of the Paducah Coal and Mining Co., is expected home today from Louisville, where he has been attending a meeting of coal men.

Yesterday a session was held, and the men in attendance represented twenty-seven Kentucky mines. They were: President I. B. Bernard, of the Western Kentucky association; Vice President F. P. Wright, Secretary and Commissioner D. Stewart Mills, Treasurer, Guy M. Dean, W. G. Duncan of Greenville, T. J. Flournoy of Paducah, Alexander Blair of Henderson, S. W. Gaines of Fordsville and J. L. Frankel of Sturgis, and J. S. Halsted, who recently purchased the Memphis Coal Co.

It is understood that the price of coal, nor the labor question, was discussed.

The coal men agreed to co-operate with the Kentucky Exhibit association and see that Kentucky is properly represented at the Worlds' Fair at St. Louis.

THE SHRINERS MEET

A Class to be Instituted at Madisonville Nov 8.

Many Will Go to Louisville on November 27 When Paducahans Will Receive Degrees.

THE OFFICIAL PROCLAMATION

The Shriners of Kentucky are preparing for a big time next month. There will be a large crowd from various parts of the state go to Madisonville on November 8, where the work of the Temple will be conferred.

On November 27 at Louisville a very large class will be initiated. In it will probably be six or seven from Paducah, and quite a delegation will go up from here.

It is not known whether anyone from Paducah will go to Madisonville next week or not, as several who have been thinking of it have not decided. Louisville will send a large delegation there.

The official proclamation calling the special session declares that, "From every part of the Desert shall come the sons of the true faith, and all cares shall be left behind, and a great Caravan to Mecca shall go forth." To this, Potentate Miller adds: "Of this decree, fail not at your peril."

Other injunctions to the Nobles are: "Nobles are requested to have their fez with them. If you have none, buy one at once, and take your dress suit along."

"Nobles do not fail to have your visiting cards with you."

"Visiting Nobles are especially invited to be present, but are reminded to have the passport for the year 1902 to be admitted."

"Don't forget your clothes—if you have any—fez, claws, a smile and a night key."

"The traditional banquet will be served at the hotel at 8 o'clock p.m."

"Lastly, remember the day and date, and make arrangements to shake your business on Friday evening, November 7, 1902, at 6 o'clock."

Candidates are informed that "Parachutes will be furnished free to candidates when 'shooting shoots' and that "Life preservers and husking gloves cannot be used when holding on to the rope."

Imperial Potentate Noble Henry C. Akin has granted the Temple a dispensation to receive and ballot on petitions at Madisonville, and Nobles are urged to bring in their petitions for action.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the pilgrimage is composed of Noble John H. Barrickman, chairman; Noble James B. Camp, principal adviser; Noble William (Daddy) Ryan, principal suggester; Noble Alphonso (Gaston) Bourlier, principal chef; Noble J. Ben Wurach, principal disturber; Noble Clarence Martin, outpost rooster, all prominent Louisville Shriners.

CONSIDERED THE PLANS.

MEETING OF THE FRATERNITY BUILDING COMMITTEE.

There was a meeting of the fraternity building committee last night to look over the plans for the building, and another meeting will be held this evening.

In regard to the statement in yesterday's Sun that a member stated that there was a sentiment in favor of holding off until the local option question is settled one way or the other the gentleman said this morning that The Sun did not misquote him, and that he never said The Sun misquoted him, and that The Sun had it correct. It is probable that however strong this sentiment is, it will not have any effect on the preparations to begin work.

CONCERNING OUR

WATER WORKS.

Now that matters between the water company and the council have shaped themselves in the ordinance to be voted on by the people November 4, it will be well to understand exactly what is involved by the action to be taken.

The water company charter has yet 20 years to run, and the city has an expressed clause privileging it to purchase every five years if the city so desire. This clause is in no way involved by the present ordinance to be voted upon, and this right of the people may be exercised at any time under the optional clause. The water company in consideration of the demands made by the city council for installing an expensive filtration plant asks an extension of the hydrant rentals or, in other words, wish the city to pay a set annual rental for fire protection, which is much lower than the present contract. This does not change the present status except in the price fixed. The rental at present is $40, $30 and $25 for each fire plug, and the water company offers to reduce that amount to $25 each for all plugs, a rate lower than is enjoyed by any other city of this size in the United States, and the city and water company agree in the ordinance that this rental be rendered permanent for the 20 years remaining of their charter, and if by reason of the passing of this ordinance this concession is granted, then the water company agrees to install a first class mechanical filtration plant and guarantee to the citizens of Paducah clear, bright, sparkling water free of suspended matter and 97 per cent pure under all conditions of the river. If they fail to do this then the above contract will be null and void. A careful investigation of all the details underlying this ordinance discloses the fact that the water company is willing and expects to contract, in case the ordinance is passed, with the New York Continental Jewell Filtration Co., of New York and Chicago, who have constructed all the large and successful filter plants in the country, and this company guarantees to the water company the quality of water above described. That this company is amply able to fulfill this guarantee, there can be no question, as we need go no further from home than Cairo, and Quincy, Ill., to see similar plants to the one proposed here, operating on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers under substantially the same conditions as pertain here, and so successfully as to meet with the unqualified approval of not only the water companies, but the citizens of those cities as well, including their health officers.

That the citizens of Paducah desire pure, bright, clear water in their homes, both for drinking and bathing purposes, there can be no question, and outside of the hygienic and sanitary advantages to be expected of this purification plant, it is an observed fact that clear water redounds directly to the benefit of the city possessing
it. This is so clearly to be seen that manufacturers intending to locate their enterprises examine the water supply and are governed in their action to a great extent by the character of the water. A long list could be subjoined of the fabric manufacturers to whom clear water is almost indispensable. This substantial sanitary and commercial benefit of pure, clear water can be obtained without any question by the vote of the people on November 4, and while it involves a very considerable outlay on the part of the water company, they are willing at this time to expend the money
if the citizens of Paducah express their desire for clear, pure water by voting favorably on November 4. We trust that no prejudice founded upon misconception or misunderstanding of the issue will prevent our citizens from securing pure, clear water for our city, and that they will settle the matter by voting for the ordinance on November 4, 1902.

Some misunderstanding exists in regard to the present hydrant contract.
There are 313 hydrants or fire plugs.
The contract for rental by the city of 150 of same expires in October 1906.
Of the other 163 the contract for rental will not expire for 20 years from the date they were put in, which will make them extend to 1914 to 1922.

TWO IMPORTANT QUESTIONS.

A vote for the $100,000 bond issue is not a vote for more taxation, but a vote for more substantial and prettier streets, and for putting a quietus on the annual waste of money in Paducah for street improvements that are of no benefit and last but a few months at the most. The amount of money necessary for paying the interest on these bonds will easily be saved out of the annual appropriation for street improvements, which for the four years ending last December averaged $25,000 a year. The streets in the business portion of the city, where good streets, on account of the heavy traffic, are needed most, will be rebuilt of brick or asphalt, to be decided later, and thousands of dollars that, unless it is done, will be wasted in both work and worthless gravel, will be saved to the taxpayers. Even if taxation were increased slightly, which it need not be, the investment would still be a profitable one, as thousands of dollars have been thrown away in past years on our streets, with nothing but ruts and holes to show for it. This bond issue seems to meet with the indorsement of all progressive citizens, irrespective of politics, and sufficient interest should be taken in it to carry it at the election next week.

Another question that should meet with unanimous approval is that of authorizing a contract with the water company for twenty years for fire hy-drants at $25 each in order to secure filtered water. This is a reasonable rental, and will by curtailing existing contracts save the city over $25,000, and in addition enable the water company to put in a filtration plant and give the people filtered water. There are few cities in the United States where the cost of fire hydrants is as low as $25 each a year. In some it is as high as $50, and Paducah is now and for several years longer will have to pay $40 on some hydrants unless the proposition to be voted on next week is indorsed by the people at the polls. The city gives up nothing by making the contract. The option to purchase the waterworks, which may be exercised every five years, will remain undisturbed, and if the city desires to buy the works may do so, filtration plant and all.

These two questions are of such significance that every voter should go to the polls with the intention uppermost in his mind to vote on both propositions, for a vote not cast one way or the other is counted a vote against them. If the propositions carry it will mean a great deal towards the advancement of Paducah and in addition to the permanent benefits to be derived, will mean over $100,000 spent here for labor and material.
Over $30,000 of the cost of the filtration plant alone will be expended here for work and material, to say nothing of the money spent for rebuilding the streets.

If Chief of Police Collins is to enforce the Sunday law he should enforce it to the letter, and let the people enjoy the full benefit of it.
It will not meet with the approval of the people in general to enforce it against some and let others go. It will not be just to make fish of one and flesh of another. If he has not meant to strictly enforce the law, his bluff was of course a good joke. It is almost as funny as Mayor Yeiser's standing joke about not knowing the saloons were open on Sunday. The disposition of the people behind the move seems to be that the law should be indiscriminately enforced. If there is a law against selling papers, or soda water, or anything else, on Sunday, it should be enforced just the same as that against selling whiskey.
The law is all we have to go by, and if the cigar man, newsdealer or soda water dispenser violates it he is entitled to no better treatment—from the standpoint of the strict constructionist, which seems to be the standard on which the present agitation is based—than the saloonkeeper who violates it.

POOR POLICEMAN.

HE WAS TIED WHILE THE ROB-BERS ROBBED THE BANK.

Gardner, Ill., Oct. 30.—Six men blew open the vault of a bank here
and took several thousand dollars.
They seized Town Marshal Edmondson, at the engine house, tied him up with ropes, took him to the bank and set him in a chair. The marshal is the only policeman, and everybody else in the town was asleep. The vault was blown open with dynamite and the inside of the bank wrecked.
The robbers are supposed to have secured between $3,000 and $4,000, though the amount is not known.
After leaving the bank they took the marshal to the school house and tied him to a chair and put a rope around his neck. The chair was placed at the head of a stairway, so that if he struggled to release himself he would fall downstairs and hang himself. The robbers took a train which left at 4:40
for Chicago.

THE K. OF P. GRAND LODGE.

Remainder of Paducah Delegation Expected This Evening.

Officers Elected and Report of Widows and Orphans Committee.

Messrs. Al Young, L. S. Gleaves and John Deeg will return from the Knights of Pythias grand lodge tonight. Messrs. Arthur Martin, Harry Atkins, Sam Hill and County Judge
R. T. Lightfoot returned last night.
In the election of officers the old officers were advanced in order,
Grand Chancellor Logan retiring.
The only contest was for the office of grand outer guard, Mr. George D.
Young of Louisville being elected over
Mr. Alva Blackwell of Henderson.
The complete list follows:
Jouett Henry of Hopkinsville, grand chancellor.

Joseph G. Covington, Bowling
Green, grand vice chancellor.

W. F. Sherman, Carrollton, grand prelate.

John W. Carter, Owensboro, grand keeper of records and seals.

Jule Plummer, Covington, grand master of the exchequer.

Capt. John Swift, Dayton, grand master-at-arms.

Milton H. McLean, Covington,
grand inner guard.

George D. Young, Louisville, grand outer guard.

The grand tribunal will be appointed by the grand chancellor. Those now composing the tribunal are Mr.
E. D. Guffy, Louisville; R. H. Elliston, Williamstown, and W. C. Quimby, Dayton.

The committee on widows' and orphans' home made an elaborate report, recommending the founding of a home for the widows and orphans and suggesting that a committee be appointed by the grand chancellor to select a suitable location for the home.
Already $25,000 has been raised toward building the home.

The part which the grand lodge of Kentucky will take in the biennial conclave in 1904 will not be discussed at this session, the sentiment being in favor of deferring action on this matter until the next annual meeting.

SLAM ON METROPOLIS.

NO JAILS IN JUDGE ROBARDS'
DISTRICT FIT FOR HUMANS.

In speaking of the action of Judge
Otis Humphrey, United States district judge, in sending a man to the penitentiary in preference to a jail because of the unsanitary condition of the latter, Judge Joseph P. Robards, of Cairo, according to the Metropolis
Herald said:

"There is not a jail in this circuit that is fit for any human being to be confined in, especially for any length of time, with the exception of the Jackson county jail at Murphysboro.

"They are places of torture. Many of them have been condemned from time to time in the reports of the Circuit court. They are poorly lighted and have little ventilation, and are disease breeding places of pestilence.

"A man sentenced to the penitentary, however, feels more keenly the sting of shame and remorse for his crime, for a man who has served in the state prison is looked upon as a hardened criminal. It does not rest with the circuit judge as to where prisoners shall be confined, but for real punishment there is nothing like the jails of Southern Illinois."

The Massac county jail, it will be seen from the above, comes in for its full share of condemnation.

INDEPENDENT TELEPHONES.

OFFICERS OF THE ASSOCIATION
ELECTED IN LOUISVILLE.

Louisville, Oct. 30.—The officers of the Kentucky Independent Telephone association were elected as follows:
President, D. L. Pendleton, Winchester; vice president, H. K. Cole, Owensboro; secretary and treasurer, Jas Malet, Mt. Vernon.

The statement that the independent telephone associations raised a "fight fund" of $10,000 at the meeting yesterday afternoon is erroneous. Only $1,000 was raised, and this was to defray legal expenses of the past.

DEATH AT CALVERT.

The wife of Murray Faith, aged 22,
died at Calvert City, after a long illness. She was a daughter of D. W.

Marshall county. The funeral took place at the family burial ground.

MARRIAGES

Mr. Ebbert Frazer Marries a Mississippi Girl.

Mr. L. A. Lagomarsino's Niece Weds in Alabama—Other Weddings.

A Tupelo, Miss., telegram gives the following details of the marriage there yesterday of a former Paducah boy:

A beautiful wedding was solemnized this afternoon at the Main street Methodist church, when William Ebbert Frazer of Birmingham, Ala., and Miss Minnie May Hoyle of this city were joined in the holy bonds of wedlock. The church was decorated most tastefully in white chrysanthemums, palms and ferns and the chancel was transformed into a scene of loveliness. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Miss Anderson as the ushers, Misses Mamie Finley, Corinne Laney, Lovie Thomas and Mary McAllister preceded the wedding party to the altar and took their places on either side. The groom entered accompanied by his best man, Mr. Gaither of Memphis, and awaited the bride, who entered with her matron of honor, Mrs. J. W. Hoyle.

Using the ceremony of the Methodist church ritual, Rev. J. A. Bowen, pastor of the church, pronounced the ceremony which made of the happy couple husband and wife.

The bride is one of the most charming young ladies of the place and possesses all the gentle graces of womanhood. Since her entrance into society she has occupied a most enviable position among her host of friends and is universally admired. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hoyle of this city.

The groom is a native of Kentucky and belongs to one of the first families of the Bluegrass state. He is a young man of sterling qualities and is highly esteemed for his splendid character and business qualifications. He is a valued attache of the Southern Express company. Mr. and Mrs. Fraser left over the Frisco immediately after the ceremony for Missouri to visit Mr. Fraser's parents, who now reside in that state.

Mr. L. A. Lagomarsino, the hotel man, today received news of the marriage at Sheffield, Ala., of his niece, Miss Annie Lagomarsino, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Lagomarsino, to Mr. J. F. Waggoner, manager of the Sheffield oil mill.

A Jackson, Tenn., dispatch of yesterday says: J. D. Collins, a young Illinois Central railroad man, and Miss Pearl Scott were married last night at 8:30 o'clock at the home of Father Murray. They are taking a bridal tour to Chicago.

Miss Ada Lee Frank and Mr. N. R. Faris, of Salem, Livingston county, came to the city yesterday afternoon and were married by Rev. W. E. Cave, of the First Presbyterian church.

George W. Vinson, a carpenter of the city, age 50, and A. Della Kulp, of the city, age 30, were this afternoon licensed to wed. It will make the third marriage of both.

THEATRICAL NEWS.

Last night the Howard-Dorset repertoire company pleased another large audience with "The Little Gypsy." Mr. Howard appeared as a country boy and his work was received with much satisfaction. Mr. Howard does not attempt to play all the leads as he says he is "not the whole show" but has others. Tonight the company will present "An Innocent Sinner" and no doubt the house will again be packed. The specialties in last night's show were excellent and the pictures were also very fine. The company is prepared to please in every branch of the entertaining art and no The matinees are well attended and the company is winning more success daily.

Mr. Harry Ward, the funny minstrel man, who has always been popular in Paducah, is coming again Monday. This time he has an addition to the company—his bride, to whom he was married a few days ago. Harry, who has a warm place in the hearts of many admirers here, especially among the Elks, who have often entertained him at their social sessions, will doubtless find a cordial welcome here. It will be his first appearance in Paducah for two years.

Mr. Ward's bride was Miss Wilson, of Bement, Mo., and they were married at Carbondale, Ill., last Saturday. Mr. Ward's real name is Arthur W. Dudley.

Besides a great list of all-star performers with Harry Ward's Magnificent minstrels, which will hold the boards at The Kentucky, we would like to inform the lovers of music that this is the only attraction of its kind carrying a complete band of soloists.

It is a very hard matter to engage a band of such musicians for the reason that they are very scarce and when under contract always get large salaries, their services being sought for by managers, who appreciate the fact that it does not pay to carry an incompetent musician because he can be gotten cheap. Prices 25, 35 and 50 cents.

Miss Franklyn Gale, who was leading lady of Manager English's stock company last summer, is now playing the leads in "A Silver Dagger."

Not so with Lendler & Lydon's, however. When you reckon the age of our shoes you use months and parts of years. They grow old gracefully, keeping their shapeliness, their easy wearing quality and style always.

We have one shoe here that is markedly noted for these qualities. 'Tis our popular price shoe for men. It's the outwearingest most comfortable, easy walking shoe the foot ever explored. 'Tis made expressly for us, expressly for the man who wants this price shoe

At the Gates of Night.
There are two gates that guard the Night:
The one where shadows creep,
And lullabies come crooning low,
Full-throated, soft and deep;
Where twilight reaches forth her arms
To all by Day oppressed,
And lulls them into happiness,
Serene upon her breast.
And from that gate, all dark and cool,
The night road stretches far,
By palaces of sweet content,
Where many dreamings are;
Where blind may see and dumb may speak,
And sad ones laugh and sing,
Where hungered ones may drink and eat.
The pauper be a king.
All through the Night the good road goes,
O'er valley, plain and steep;
Along its sides, in grandeur, rise
The citadels of sleep.
And many things there be that soothe
And comfort us, and bless—
But best of all, the blossoms fair
Of rich forgetfulness.
The other gate that guards the Night—
The one that ends the way—
Has trumpeters that loudly call Us forth into the day.
And though we fear the fumes of Day
With bitterness and dread,
We know that through the weary hours

Arms and The Woman

By Harold MacGrath

By Harold MacGrath.

"It means nothing and everything," was the answer. "In the first place, here will fight no duel. The man with whom you were to fight was sent on an errand to this out of the way place as a punishment for his dueling at the capital. I know him by reputation. He is a braver, but a fair swordsman. He would have you as I would a chicken. There is another who has a prior claim on him. If there is anything left of Herr Lieutenant at the end of the fray, you are welcome to it. Yes; there will be a duel, but you will not be one of the principals. It is all arranged."

"But I do not understand," I cried. "It is not necessary that you should." He laughed and rubbed his hands in pleasurable anticipation. "There is a young man down stairs who arrived a few moments before the lieutenant. He has a special affair. There were words. Herr Lieutenant is mad enough to fight a whole company."

"Then why in heaven's name am I up here in this condition?" I cried. "Let me go and be the young man's second, though I can't for the life of me see where he has come from so suddenly and I might say opportunely. Come, cut me loose."

"It is too late."

"Too late?"

"Yes. Herr Lieutenant has been informed that you ran away."

"Ran away?" I roared. "You told him that I ran away? Curse your insolence! I'll break every bone in your body for this!" I cried, straining at the ropes.

"The ropes are new," said he. "You'll hurt yourself."

"You told him that I ran away?"

"This was too much."

"Yes. Ah, but you will be surprised. The duel will last five minutes. Herr Lieutenant will thrust. The thrust will be parried. He will feint; useless. Thrust on thrust, parry on parry. Consternation will take the place of confidence. He will grow nervous. He will try all his little tricks, and they will fail. Then his eyes will roll and his breath come in gasps. Suddenly he thinks he sees an opening. He lunges. Ah, the fool, it is all over!" The old man's voice quivered with excitement. He had passed his time in the barracks and had seen many a sword skirmish.

"Well, are you going to take off these ropes?"

"No. You would break every bone in my body."

I groaned in exasperation.

"You will soon be out of breath."

Oh, could I have but loosened those cords!

"Stahlberg, who left the service a year ago, will act in the capacity of second." Stahlberg was at the head of the vineyard. "I shall watch the affair from the window here. The scene of action will take place in the clearing beyond. It will be an affair worth witnessing."

"And where is Gretchen?"

"Where she should be—at the bar, a dutiful barmaid." Then I heard nothing but the deep cacklings of the innkeeper. There was something in the affair which appealed to his humor. I could not see it. For ten minutes my vocabulary was strictly unprintable.

"Will you kindly tell me what the meaning of all this is?"

"Herr Winthrop, the idyl has come to an end. The epic now begins."

CHAPTER XIII.

The golden summer moon was far up now, and the yellow light of it came into the window and illumined the grim face of the innkeeper, throwing a grotesque shadow of him on to the floor. The leaves rustled and purred against the eaves. As the branches moved so did the light and darkness move over the innkeeper's visage. He was silent and meditative.

"An epic?" I said.

"An epic."

"Innkeeper," said I, "if I give you my word of honor not to molest you or leave this room will you let me be a witness?"

He passed into the gloom, then back into the light. "This is no trick?" suspiciously. "I have a deal of regard for my old bones, old as they are."

"On my honor."

"Well, I'll do it. It is in the blood of us all. But a false move on your part, and I promise you that this knife shall find a resting place in you."

He cut the ropes, and I was free. But my arms ached. The two of us took our stand by the window and waited for the principals in the drama about to be enacted in the clearing. I confess that my conscience was ill at ease. Why I knew not. I was dreading something, I knew not what. The innkeeper's hand trembled on my arm.

"Sh! They come," he whispered.

As I looked beyond his finger I saw four figures advance over the sward. One of them, a slight boyish form, was new to me. The fellow walked briskly along at the side of Stahlberg, who was built on the plan of Hercules. When they came to the clearing, they stopped. The seconds went through the usual formalities of testing the temper of the swords. Somehow I could not keep my eyes off the youngster who was going to do battle with the veteran, and I could not help wondering where in the world he had come from and why in the world he had chosen this place to settle his dispute in. There were plenty of convenient places in the village in and around the barracks. He took his position, back to me, so I could not tell what he was like. The moon shone squarely in the lieutenant's face, upon which was an expression of contempt mingled with confidence. My heart thumped, for I had never seen a duel before.

"I do not know where you came from," I heard the lieutenant say, "but you managed nicely to pick a quarrel. It is all on your own head. It is too bad that cur of an Englishman had to run away."

The innkeeper's knife was so close that I could feel the point of it against my ribs. So I gave up the wild idea of yelling from the window that I hadn't run away. The lieutenant's opponent shrugged. He placed himself on guard. That was his reply. Suddenly the two sprang forward, and the clash of swords followed. I could not keep track of the weapons, but I could see that the youngster was holding his own amazingly well. Neither was touched the first bout.

"Two minutes," murmured the old rascal at my side. "It will be over this time."

"You seem to have a good deal of confidence in your man," said I.

"There is not a finer swordsman—swordsman in the kingdom, or on the continent for that matter. There, they are at it again!"

Step by step the lieutenant gave ground. The clashing had stopped. It was needlike work now. Gradually they began to turn around. The blades flashed in the moonshine like heat lightning. My pulse attuned itself to every stroke. I heard a laugh. It was full of scorn. The laugh—it recalled to me a laugh I had heard before. Evidently the youngster was playing with the veteran. I became fascinated. And while the innkeeper and I watched a curious thing happened. Something seemed to be slipping from the youngster's head. He tried to put up his free hand, but the lieutenant was making furious passes. A flood of something dimly yellow suddenly fell about the lad's shoulders. Oh, then I knew! With a snarl of rage I took the innkeeper by the throat and hurled him, knife and all, to the floor, dashed from the room, thence to the stairs, down which I leaped four at a time. Quick as I was, I was too late. The lieutenant's sword lay on the grass, and he was clasping his shoulder, with the sweat of agony on his brow.

"A woman!" he groaned. "A woman!" Then he tottered and fell in the arms of his subordinate. He had fainted.

"This will make a pretty story!" cried the young officer as he laid his superior lengthwise and tried to stanch the flow of blood. "Here's a man who runs away and lets a woman—God knows what sort—fight his duels for him, the cur!"

I never looked at him, but went straight to Gretchen. Stahlberg gave me a questioning glance and made a move as though to step between.

"Stand aside, man!" I snapped. "Gretchen, you have dishonored me."

"It were better than to bury you," lightly. "I assure you he caused me no little exertion."

Yet her voice shook, and she shuddered as she cast aside the sword.

"You have made a laughing stock of me. I am a man and can fight my own battles," I said sternly. "My God, breaking down suddenly, 'supposing you had been killed!'"

"It was not possible. And the man insulted me, not you. A woman? Very well. I can defend myself against everything but calumny. Have I made a laughing stock of you? It is nothing to me. It would not have altered me!" She was very white, and she stroked her forehead.

"Well?" said I.

"It would not have altered my determination to take the sword in hand again."

She put her hand to her throat as though something there had tightened. "Ah, I am a woman, for I believe that I am about to faint. No! Imperiously as I threw out my arms to catch her, 'I can reach the door alone without assistance.'

And so we went along. I did not know what to do nor yet what to say. A conflict was raging in my heart between shame and love—shame that a woman had fought for me and won where I should have lost, love that strove to spring from my lips in exultation. I knew not which would have conquered had I not espied the blood on Gretchen's white hand.

"You are wounded!" I cried.

She gazed at her hand as though she did not understand; then, with a little sob and a little choke, she extended her arms toward me and stumbled. Was ever there a woman who could look on blood without fainting? Gretchen had not quite fainted, but the moon had danced, she said, and all had grown dim.

"Gretchen, why did you risk your life? In God's name, what manner of woman are you and where did you learn to use the sword? Had you no thought of me?" I was somewhat incoherent.

"No thought of you?" She drew the back of her hand over her eyes. "No thought of you? I did it because—because I did not—I could not—you would have been killed!"

I was a man—human. I loved her. I had always loved her. I had never loved any one else. I was a coward to do what I did, but I could not help it. I crushed her to my breast and kissed her lips, not once, but many times.

"How dare you?" weakly.

"How dare I, Gretchen, dear Gretchen?" I said. "I dare because I love you! I love you! What is it to me that you have dishonored me in the eyes of men? Nothing. I love you. Are you a barmaid? I care not. Are you a conspirator? I know not nor care. I know but one thing. I love you. I shall always love you. Shall I tell you more? Gretchen, you love me!"

"No, no, it cannot be!" she sobbed, pushing me back. "I am the most wretched woman in the world. Do not follow me, herr. Leave me; I beg you to leave me. I have need of the little strength left. Leave me, leave me!"

And she passed through the doorway into the darkness beyond. I did not move from where I stood. I grew afraid that it was a dream and that if I moved it would vanish. I could yet feel her lithe, warm body palpitating in my arms. My lips still tingled and burned with the flame of hers. An exultant wave swept over me. She loved me! She had not told me so, but I knew. She had put her heart before mine. My life was dearer to her than her own. I could have laughed for joy. She loved me! My love overwhelmed my shame, engulfed it, then—

"I know you," said a harsh voice at my elbow. It startled me, and I wheeled swiftly. It was the lieutenant's brother officer. "I thought from what I heard of you that you were a man worth trouble and caution. Ah, you, the man we have scoured the country for? I should not have believed it. To let a woman fight for him! And she—she is more than a woman—she is a goddess!" with enthusiasm. "If I was betrothed to her, I'd find her if I had to hunt in heaven and hell for her. And what does she see in you?" He snapped his fingers derisively. "I warn you that your race is run. You cannot leave a railway station within the radius of a hundred miles. The best thing you can do is to swim the river and stop in the middle. The prince is at the village, and he shall know. Woe to you, you meddler!"

"Young man," said a voice from over my shoulder from the doorway, "you should by right address those impertinent remarks to me. I am Hillars, the man you seek."

And I had forgotten his very existence! What did he know? What had he seen?

"You may inform Count von Walden," continued Dan, "that I shall await his advent with the greatest of impatience. Now let me add that you are treating this gentleman with much injustice. I'll stake my life on his courage. The Princess Hildegarde is alone responsible for what has just happened."

"The Princess Hildegarde?" I cried.

Hillars went on: "Why she did this is none of your business or mine. Why she substituted herself concerns her and this gentleman only. Now go, and be hanged to you and your prince and your count and your whole stupid country. Come, Jack!"

The fellow looked first at me, then at Dan.

"I apologize," he said to Dan, "for mistaking this man for you." He clicked his heels, swung around and marched off.

"Come," said Dan.

I dumbly followed him up to my room. He struck a match and lit the candle.

"Got any tobacco?" he asked, taking out a black pipe. "I have not had a good smoke in a week. I want to smoke awhile before I talk."

I now knew that he had been a witness to all or at least to the larger part of it.

"There is some tobacco on the table," I said humbly. I felt that I had wronged him in some manner, though unintentionally. "The Princess Hildegarde?" I murmured.

"The very person," said Hillars. He lit his pipe and sat on the edge of the bed. He puffed and puffed, and I thought he never would begin. Presently he said, "And you never suspected who she was?"

"On my word of honor, I did not, Dan," said I, staring at the faded designs in the carpet. The golden galleon had gone down, and naught but a few bubbles told where she had once so proudly ridden the waters of the sea. The Princess Hildegarde! The dream was gone. Castles, castles!

"I am glad you did not know," said Dan, "because I have always believed in your friendship. Yet it is something we cannot help, this loving a woman. Why, a man will lay down his life for his friend, but he will rob him of the woman he loves. It is life. You love her, of course."

"Yes," I took out my own pipe now. "But what's the use? She is a princess. Why, I thought her at first a barmaid—a barmaid! Then I thought her to be in some way a lawbreaker, a socialist conspirator. It would be droll if it were not sad. The Princess Hildegarde!" I laughed drollly. "Dan, old man, let's dig out at once and close the page. We'll talk it over when we are older."

"No; we will face it out. She loves you. Why not? So do I." He got off the bed and came over to me and rested his hands on my shoulders. "Jack, my son, next to her I love you better than anything in the world. We have worked together, starved together, smoked and laughed together. There is a bond between us that no human force can separate. The princess, if she cannot marry you, shall not marry the prince. I have a vague idea that it is written. 'The moving finger writes and, having writ, moves on.' We cannot cancel a line of it."

"Dan, you will do nothing rash or reckless?"

"Sit down, my son, sit down. Premeditation is neither rashness nor recklessness. Jack, life has begun with you. With me it has come to an end. When there is nothing more to live for, it is time to die. But how? That is the question. A war would be a god-send. But these so-called war lords are a lazy lot or cowardly or both. Had I a regiment, what a death! Jack, do you not know what it is to fight the invisible death? Imagine yourself on the line, with the enemy thundering toward you, sabers flashing in the sunlight and lead singing about your ears. It is the only place in the world to die—on a battlefield. Fear passes away as a cloud from the face of the sun. The enemy is bringing you glory—or death. Yes, I would give a good deal for a regiment and a bad moment for our side. But the regiment non est. Still, there is left!"

"Dan, what are you talking about?" I cried.

Death—grim, gaunt and gray death, whose footstep is as noiseless as the fall of snow; death, the silent one, as the Indian calls him."

He knocked the ash from his pipe and stuffed the brier into his pocket.

"Jack, I am weary of it all. If I cannot die artistically, I wish to die a sudden and awful death. What! Do I look like a man to die in bed, in the lecherous ward? For surely I shall land there soon! I am going to pieces like a sand house in a windstorm. I suppose I'm talking nonsense. After all, I haven't as much to say as I thought I had. Suppose we turn in? I'm tired. You see, those fellows moved me around today."

CHAPTER XIII.

Hillars and I stood in the middle of the road. He held the binoculars. "How many can you make out?" I asked.

"Four. All on horseback. There's a coach of some sort following on behind. But everything is blurred, and my hand trembles. The whisky here is terrible. Here, look for yourself," handing the glasses to me. "Tell me what you see."

"There's one with a white cap—ah, it is Count von Walden! There are two soldiers in the Hohenphallian uniform, cavalry. I do not know who the fourth fellow is."

"Describe him to me," said Hillars, trying to roll a cigarette with his trembling fingers. "Curse it!—throwing away the rice paper—I've got so bad that I can't roll a cigarette! Well, what's he look like?"

"He's in civilian dress; has a little black mustache and an imperial."

"Look anything like Napoleon III?"

"You've hit it. Who is he?"

"They say he's Prince Ernst of Wurttemberg," said Hillars, "but it is my opinion that he's the devil on a furlough."

"Then he is the man!"—I began.

"He is. Your love affair is all over once he gets here, unless"—Dan looked at the sky as though he was undecided about the weather.

"Unless what?" I asked.

"Oh, just unless," said he. "I'd give £5 for a glass of homemade whisky."

"You've got a plan of some sort," said I. "Speak it out."

"It wasn't a plan; it was just an idea. It's gone now. Maybe it will come back later. Are you going to stay here or come with me and tackle a bottle of the innkeeper's Rhine wine? The German vinegar used to make you hilarious."

"What's the coach for?" I asked.

"Are they going to carry us off like a couple of chickens?"

"I presume it is for her serene highness. I wonder how they found out she was here? Probably the lieutenant you were going to fight, but didn't, informed them. At any rate, the coach will not be for us. The prince will not bother with you and me while the princess is here. I don't know what they will do with us. Possibly nothing; possibly put us in jail. Come along; I'm thirsty."

It was late in the afternoon of the day following. I had not seen her serene highness the Princess Hildegarde—Gretchen. She had remained in her room, and all efforts of mine to hold communication with her had proved futile. I had stood at her door and supplicated. She had told me to go away. The innkeeper had scowled when I suggested that he carry a note to his mistress. He had refused.

"The princess receives no notes," he had said. "Gretchen—it was a different matter."

And Hillars had slept till after noon. It had been a bad morning for me. The wounded lieutenant had been carried away the night before, and there had not been anything for me to do but wander about—waiting.

"Will you help me with the Rhine wine?" asked Hillars.

"No. My head is fuddled enough as it is."

"Then you must let me do all the talking."

"And why you?"

THE

CHIEF COLLINS

He is Stopped by the Lane, Hat and Blind.

Asks in Vain "Where He Is At"—Undecided What He Will Do.

Chief of Police James Collins said today that he would like for someone to tell him "where he is at."

"I guess I must be a pretty popular fellow," he said today. "I never saw the like of people coming after me. They want this and they want that, and they don't want this and don't want that."

"I don't know what I'm going to do yet. I thought I would enforce the strict letter of the law Sunday just to show the people, especially some of those who have been having so much to say, that there are others besides the saloon men violating the law on Sunday. I don't know any reason why one more than another should be prosecuted, if they violate the law."

Chief Collins intimated that he will let things go on as they are for a time, anyhow.

There seem to be a number of agencies at work, and it may be that the local option contest will be dropped. Chief Collins predicts this.

Chief Collins said later on that he will probably decide this evening just what he will do. He says some of the proprietors want to keep their stores open on Sunday, and after they have come around to him with their troubles, the clerks come along and want the stores closed. He is stopped everywhere he goes and asked what he is going to do and numerous other questions, and he has come to the conclusion that he doesn't know, unless it is to leave town to escape it all.

THREE MEN KILLED.

C., H. AND D. PASSENGER TRAIN COLLIDES WITH A FREIGHT AND IS ON FIRE.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 30.—Cincinnati, Hamilton and Indianapolis passenger train No. 36, which left Hamilton at 9:57 o'clock last night ran into a local freight train two miles east of the Oxford. Engineer Conn and two unknown men were instantly killed. Mail Clerk John Conner of Hamilton was badly hurt. The passengers were badly shaken up but it is not believed any of them were seriously injured.

HAND CAUGHT IN MACHINERY.

George Turner, an employe at Kilgore's, had the last three fingers on his right hand cut off yesterday afternoon at the heading factory. He was placing a piece of wood in the shaver when his hand was drawn into it, with the above result. Half of his hand, in addition to the fingers, was cut off.

NO CASE YET

Rev. G. W. Briggs Informed That He Need Not Appear Again.

No Warrant Sworn Out Against Him—No Disposition to Prosecute

Rev. G. W. Briggs, pastor of the Broadway M. E. church, appeared at the city hall this morning at 9 o'clock, to answer any charge that might be preferred against him in connection with the unfortunate cutting at The Inn a few nights ago.

Mr. T. J. Garr, the gentleman who was out, is able to be out, but says that he will not lodge complaint, and as there is no disposition on part of the officers to compel him to furnish the information necessary for issuing a warrant, Rev. Briggs will probably not have to go to the city hall again.

He and several of his minister friends remained in the chief's office, and Chief Collins was called. After a brief conversation, Dr. Briggs was told that he could go, and if a warrant was issued against him at any time, he will be notified.

Chief Collins declined to make a statement. He only closed his mouth and smiled when asked if that was the last of the case, and referred the reporter to County Attorney Eugene Graves.

Attorney Graves had nothing to say, except that a warrant could be issued at any time, and that there was no agreement so far as he knew to suppress the case, although it probably will not be pushed.

Even if this were the determination in the police department, however, it would not prevent the grand jury from taking it up in December. It is generally understood, however, that the police will allow the matter to drop.

STEMMERY TO CLOSE.

THE WM. CLARKE CO. TO BUY BY CONTRACT.

Mr. L. B. Hicks, foreman of the Wm. Clarke stemmery, at Fifth and Olay, will probably leave Paducah. The concern, which is owned by Liverpool, England, men, is to be closed, and the tobacco will hereafter be bought by contract. It is not known what will become of the stemmery, but it will doubtless be sold. Mr. Hicks came here from Henderson.

SANTA MARIA VOLCANO.

REPORTS SHOW THAT IT IS IN FULL ERUPTION.

Mexico City, Oct. 30.—Reports received from the southern part of the republic show that it is now generally believed the volcanic ashes covering all that country came from Santa Maria volcano in full eruption. The mountain is in Guatemala, close to the Mexican frontier.
